SLICKERS TO QUIT?

Their boss won't say

By Peter
Scott

IN

Is Sydney's famous Hakoah Club on the verge of pulling out of top-class soccer? The question is on the lips of every one of the Blue-and-Whites' members.

Rumours can usually be nipped in the bud by a firm and unequivocal denial from responsible officials, but such denial was not forthcoming in this case.

Asked whether he had any comment to make on talk forecasting Sydney City's "The Slickers" withdrawal from Philips League soccer, and its re-emergence in amateur soccer, club president Frank Lowy refused to commit himself.

"Nothing has been discussed officially and I'm not denying or confirming the rumours," he said last week.

Such reticence can only add fuel to the gossip and increase the concern of the club's dwindling band of faithful supporters.

The genesis of the situation goes back to the administrative style of the Hakoah Club over the past decade, but what may have given the final push was the experiment of dropping the team's traditional name of Hakoah for the nondescript district tag of Sydney City.

By any objective judgement the change of name has been an unmitigated disaster.

After an early burst of promotional enthusiasm the ersatz entity of Sydney City is in the situation of playing its matches in front of miserably tiny crowds of a few hundred.

Not only did the promised throngs of new, non-"ethnic" supporters fail to materialise but the decision to discard the club's world-famous and long-honored name has also alienated a considerable section of the traditional base of support in Sydney's Jewish community.

This comes at a time when that community's growth pattern is on the upswing once again, with the continuing influx of large numbers of Soviet Jewish refugees.

Interestingly enough, the first section of the Sydney Jewish community to be alienated from soccer was the affluent, educated and thoroughly integrated generation in its late twenties and early thirties.

The tragedy of Hakoah is that the grand, non-ethnic design bulldozed home so relentlessly by the moguls of the Australian Soccer Federation has pushed the club to the edge of extinction.

The only glimmer of hope seems to be in the growing awareness among a section of the soccer team's following, that the current spate of rumours about ceasing pro soccer operations may be, to quote a long-standing fan, "a put-up job".

"I believe the rumours are being planted and spread among those sections of the club's following who, traditionally, do not express their opinions in any militant manner," he said.

"Thus the groundwork is seemingly being laid for a situation where certain sections of the Hakoah Club leadership will be in the position to claim that the members are 'demanding' discontinuation of the pro teams in the name of cutting down on expenses."

Cosmos a steal at $50,000

By Kyle Patterson

If Victorian Soccer Federation tours chief Michael Weinstein gets an assurance that star players will not demand additional appearance fees, the visit of the New York Cosmos will be a bargain-basement deal.

The US $50,000 package deal includes Cosmos paying their own air fares from Kuala Lumpur to Melbourne, a coaching clinic for players and coaches and, of course a galaxy of international stars.

Weinstein's only concern is that certain players in the Cosmos team are contracted to private promoters, and could feasibly ask for extra money apart from the fee paid to Cosmos.

However, the negotiating prowess of Weinstein is considerable, and the VSF is confident it will be up for no more than US $50,000 plus accommodation.

This is chicken feed for a team packed with crowd-pulling stars. To get a team with equal glamour from Europe or South America would cost much more. AEK Athens, not a leading European club, cost A$50,000 a game. Cosmos has 11 international players with 13 different nationalities in the team. This will ensure interest from many groups of Melbourne's ethnic soccer following.

A crowd of 20,000 is anticipated at Olympic Park for the Leif Garrett: has a kick with Rod Stewart, Mick Jagger, Paul Simon, Rick Wakeman.

Leif's a fan

Will rock singer Leif Garrett make guest appearances for the New York Cosmos?

And what are the chances of rock music heavies Rick Wakeman, Paul Simon and Peter Frampton turning out for the Philadelphia Fury?

But the big question is: which club will sign Scottish 'international' star Rod Stewart?

Although it's unlikely that any of these big-name rock stars will be playing in the North America Soccer League, you can bet the celebrities would dearly love to get out on a ground and knock a ball around with the Bests, the Beckenbauers, the Marshs and the Muellers.

The stars mentioned are just a few of the big names getting involved with the NASL. Wearing a Cosmos shirt at the Giants Stadium is becoming just as 'hip' as being photographed at New York's exclusive Studio 54 disco.

Teenage singing idol Leif Garrett is the latest big name to become part of the NASL, not only is Garrett an ardent Cosmos fan, he is signed to Atlantic Records, a subsidiary of Warner Communications, which owns the Cosmos.

Getting him to play for the Cosmos would be easier than you think.

Leif has a regular Sunday session with Rod Stewart. The pair arrange matches at Pepperdine University, Malibu, with an open invitation to Frampton, Simon, Wakeman, Mick Jagger and Ronnie Woods (of the Rolling Stones) to join in.

The music industry isn't discussed, as the celebrities take their soccer seriously.

Garrett even carries a soccer ball with him on tour, to fill in time before interviews and rehearsals.

Garrett recently was involved with some promotional work at the NY Cosmos' home game with Fort Lauderdale Strikers. He kicked balls into the stands and by all reports, showed considerable ability.

'Personalities have gone out of soccer': Pat

DELLA ROCCA - 16th
YEAR AT THE TOP

Pat Della Rocca ... after 16 years and more than 400 games, he's still playing his heart out for Juventus.

Pat Della Rocca's all-star team of players he opposed -

Yakko BANOVIC (Croatia)	Dick VAN ALPHEN (Ringwood C)	Milenko RUSMIR (JUST)
Jim MANTARAKIS (SM Hellas)	Billy RICE (JUST)
Vic JANCZYK (Polonia)	Eddie JANKOWSKI (Polonia)	Jimmy MACKAY (Croatia)
Bill VOJTEK (Croatia)	Jimmy ARMSTRONG (SM Hellas)	Branko BULJEVIC (JUST)

Reserves: Hammy McMEECHAN (Croatia), Mike CLAREY (Hakoah)

The fortunes of Juventus Melbourne have fluctuated heavily over the past 15 years, but one thing has remained as steady as a rock - the unbending dedication of Pat Della Rocca.

Della Rocca was part of Juve's golden era of 10,000-plus crowds and domination of the Victorian State League.

The versatile and talented defender was a vital cog in the all-conquering 1970 team which included Socceroos Jack Reilly, Tommy McCall and Sandy Irvine, plus Victorian representatives Jack Goodwin, George Kinnell, Gareth Salisbury and Ron Frost.

But when the star players left and weren't replaced, Juve declined. The crowds disappeared, and the once-mighty club struggled.

However, the thought of leaving the floundering ship has never entered Della Rocca's mind. He continues to play his heart out, for the love of Juventus.

Now there's talk of Juventus amalgamating with Thomas-town. "As long as the name 'Juventus' stays, the spirit of the club will live on," said Pat.

Now 33, Della Rocca is in his 16th season with Juventus.

Unfortunately for Della Rocca, too many people remember him only for his incredible service. He never got the recognition he deserved, for he is one of the best defenders seen in the State League.

Della Rocca told me he intends to retire at the end of this season, but the general opinion is that Pat loves the game too much to stop playing now. Don't be surprised if he's back in the black and white stripes of Juventus next season.

"I think I'll give the game away at the end of this season."

The following is Pat Della Rocca's All-star Juventus team -

Gareth SALISBURY	Mario CORTI	Noel KENNY
Ron FROST	Dino DE MARCHI	Tony HEERY

Reserves: Bryan THOMPSON, Tommy MCCOLL

"I said Pat, 'I've had a good run in the game, and it's time to look at other areas, like doing a few coaching courses.'"

"I enjoy soccer, and that's why I've kept playing. I'm not a spectacular player who scores goals every week, but the satisfaction for any player is knowing yourself you did well. That's when your morale goes right up."

Della Rocca's career may have been a different story had he left Juventus, like so many of his team mates did, when the club declined. But Pat doesn't even consider that theory.

"I wouldn't play for any other club because Juventus is my home," re-affirmed Pat. "I doubt if any club would notice me, because I don't stand out in a game, but even if I had been given an offer, I would not have accepted."

Pat's consistency is remarkable. He started out as the raw youngster at 18 in 1964, and now is the veteran in 1979. The reason behind that is simple.

"I never bludge at training," said Della Rocca. "It's one of my strict rules that I train my hardest all the time to keep in top condition. If a player is fit he gets the benefit during a match."

Pat knows the problem exists in junior soccer coaching. He's been involved with the Juventus juniors for the past three years.

In fact, a young boy who was coached by Pat as an under 16, is now playing alongside his former coach.

Asked if that made him feel old, Pat replied: "No, not at all. I feel very proud that the player I coached made it into the first team."

The player in question is Oscar Crino, a Victorian Schoolboys and Youth team representative, who has made a great impact in the State League this season.

Crino has scored five goals in a handful of games, and is set for a bright future in the game.

Della Rocca first became involved with Juventus juniors in 1977 when he had a group of 14, 15 and 16 year olds and moulded them into an under 16 team.

"There are three or four players in the team who will be pushing for first team places in the future," said Pat. "More clubs should work at producing good youngsters."

Della Rocca is thankful to his first senior coach for the start he gave him.

"Mario Corti gave me a chance in the first team, and prepared me for senior soccer," remembered Pat. "He taught me a lot of things about playing center half, and gave me confidence at a testing time."

Vic Janczyk, the Polonia great, also coached Della Rocca.

"Janczyk was the master," praised Pat. "If he asked you to do something, he would show you how to do it. His skills were magical."

Current Juventus coach Tony Boggie was in command during the glorious successes of 1970. He returned to Juve this season, and has brought

"Tony is a very hard coach," said Pat. "He gets what he wants, and lets you know about it if you do something wrong. He was hard in 1978, but now he's even harder."

It was playing under Boggi that Della Rocca had his most memorable game. It was a round 21 State League championship match in 1970 at Ringwood against Wilhemina.

To clinch the championship we had to win the game," said Pat. "Ringwood had some very good players like Dave Pygall, Wim Spiekerman, Freddy Bunce and Mike Pyle."

"The score was 2-2 with about four minutes to go when Gareth Salisbury scored the winner. I felt just beautiful, 'remembered Pat as he relived the experience."

But, of course, there were forgettable games for Pat.

"My most disappointing game was in 1969. We were playing Croatia in the Ampol Cup and needed only a draw to qualify for the semi final," said Pat. "The score was 1-1 near the end of the game when I turned to pass the ball back to Jack Reilly in goal."

"Unfortunately, my pass went straight to Jimmy Mackay and he scored. Because of my mistake, Croatia went into the semi finals and Juventus was knocked out."

Pat Della Rocca, the 400-plus game veteran who joined Juventus from non-league Kensington, is a credit to Australian soccer.

If only there were more players with half as much dedication and loyalty as he shows, Australian soccer would be better off it there were.

Don't make 'Roos pay!

Australia's best under 16 players are being asked to pay to play for their country.

It's like asking the Socceroos to pay their own way! The national under 16 team will travel to Singapore to compete in the Lions Cup competition from December 2 to 12.

The parents of each boy will be asked to pay $200 towards his costs. His club will be asked to pay $280 and his State Federation will be asked for the remaining $200.

What about the million dollars provided by Coca-Cola for youth soccer? Where does that money go?

Surely it could not be put to better use than this. What hope does a poor family have of paying the $200 under the present arrangement?

Some of the greatest players in soccer history have come from poor families - Pele, Dzagic, Eusebio, Garrincha, Beara, Papaioannou, DiStefano, Puskas etc.

But under arrangements like those proposed for the Lions Cup, such players would not get the chance to play at top junior level because they would not be able to afford it.

Victoria - the soccer pace-setter in so many areas - has once again shown the way by deciding to pay ALL the costs for its representatives in the national under 16 squad.

The Victorian Soccer Federation doesn't agree with asking players to pay to represent their country.

While we're talking about Victoria, I felt it necessary during a recent television interview, to praise the VSF and its leader, Michael Weinstein, for the professional way in which it organises tours by overseas teams.

Mr Weinstein deserves a special pat on the back; because he does most of the negotiating.

The latest example of his expertise is finalisation of plans for New York Cosmos' match against Victoria's best football team on October 21.

Cosmos will play only in Melbourne, which speaks volumes for the virtues of the VSF.

The public has shown in the past that it does not mind paying, so long as it is entertainment and value in return.

Mr Weinstein has provided entertainment and value consistently over the years, but the Cosmos must be regarded as his master-stroke.

RALE RASIC

Who will not pay to see super stars like Beckenbauer, Chingaglia, Bogicevic and Neskens?

Typical of the VSF's efficiency, it already has a list of the players who will be touring. All the big names are included.

This was not the case with AEK Athens which completed its tour last week without Mavros, Ravousis and Nicoloudis, three of the big stars.

South Melbourne Hellas is a fine club, with a dedicated, hard-working committee and a collection of very talented players.

No-one can convince me that this club deserves to be on the bottom of the Philips League.

Apart from its other qualities, it has excellent facilities at Middle Park, strong spectator support and a proud tradition of consistent success.

Surely players like Stuart Baxter, Alan Evans, Duncan Cummings, George Campbell and the others can play better football than the results suggest.

What is wrong? Is it organisation, coaching, is it a case of players being overrated or underrated, or did it start with Jack Reilly's departure, was it all due to the Tony Turner case?

It's a shame that a club like Hellas is missing from among the elite. Answers will have to be found to the questions I pose if the club is to get back to the top.

Girls will join the boys for the Australian Soccer Camps coaching clinics in Adelaide in January.

The clinics will be run over two weeks at the Olympic Sports Field, Adelaide City's home ground.

The decision to go co-ed reflects the growing strength of women's soccer in Australia.

The Northern NSW Ladies' Association has 16,000 players and 1100 teams.

U/16 titles

Smoking players lose fitness

Cigarettes can reduce a player's fitness by 20 per cent.

This was one of the major pieces of information which came out of the sports medicine seminar held in Sydney recently.

Dr Buddy MacDessi, from Sutherland hospital, made the statement at the seminar organised by the Sutherland-St George branch of the NSW Soccer coaches association.

He said carbon monoxide and tar from cigarettes are what cause the drop in fitness. Carbon monoxide damages the red cells in the blood which transports oxygen through the body.

The tar builds up on the sides of the air tubes through which the body takes in air through the lungs.

Thus the smoker is not able to take as much oxygen into his body as the non-smoker and he is not able to transport it through the body as effectively.

It is aware that the use of oxygen is the be-all and end-all of fitness.

It is oxygen interacting with the blood sugar in your body that produces energy.

Oxygen is also the agent which rides the body of poisonous wastes which build up and tire the body during exercise.

These facts I already knew before attending the sports medicine seminar.

However, I had not been aware of the drastic way that cigarettes can reduce fitness.

Indeed, some days previously, as a guest speaker at the St George Rugby League club, I had informed first grade League players that in my experience cigarettes, while effecting health in later life, did not appear to appreciably effect the sporting performance of players who trained three and four times a week.

I made this statement on the basis of my own experience playing with players who had smoked.

It goes to show yet again that experience is not enough. Knowledge is also needed — something which I have been pounding into junior coaches for several years.

I was a little disappointed to see only 60 people attend the seminar, where entrance was free, to hear sports medicine experts such as Dr Peter Malouf and physiotherapist, Miss Terry Boshell, both of whom assist the Sharks League Club, former Saints conditioner, Ken Boothroyd and top nutritional adviser Dr MacDessi. Miss Boshell urged players not to use strapping unless they were recovering from an injury.

Most muscle injuries require ice for 24 to 48 hours, then heat treatment, then nerve stimulation with ultra sonics and finally exercise.

Hot and cold treatments were OUI, she said. They are archaic and damaging.

Thumb kneading of coked thighs was damaging. Spas or using a Lich board in a heated pool were excellent for this type of injury, plus general muscle injuries.

Ken Boothroyd advised against going from grass to road surfaces because of strain. This produced muscle problems. He said the emphasis he placed on all fitness training programmes was to prevent injury.

Most muscle tears and sprains were the result of faulty training.

Dr Malouf said that there was a growing opinion that the mental attitude of the player had a big bearing on how quickly his body would heal.

MONARRO WODEN MERGER A MUST FOR PSL

By DEREK R. PEACHEY, publicity officer, ACT Soccer Federation

Soccer fans the world over are astute enough to recognise a good thing when they see it and to want the best entertainment possible for their money.

Fans in the Australian Capital Territory are no less astute and, since the advent of the Philips Soccer League, have become addicted to the best soccer entertainment available to them — the Philips Soccer League.

Arguments that the ACT hasn't the numbers to satisfactorily support Canberra City and a second PSL side carry no weight with the potential 8,000 fans residing in Canberra and neighbouring New South Wales towns, Queanbeyan.

Those who believe the fans support Canberra City are living under an illusion. The fans support the national league.

Before City's fans and administrators get hot under the collar I feel I should explain my reasoning. I beg their indulgence.

Pre-PSL, top ACT clubs invariably enjoyed attendances of anything from 1,500 to 2,000 spectators, depending on which teams were playing and, as one can imagine, climatic conditions prevailing at the time.

Since the advent of PSL, Canberra City has enjoyed attendances well in excess of those numbers. In fact, pre-Newcastle KB United, fans in excess of 6,000 regularly passed through the turnstiles of the National Athletic Stadium, proving, with regular consistency, that there were more paying spectators in the ACT than in any other area in which PSL clubs performed other than, possibly, Adelaide.

Average PSL attendance in the past three years has increased from 35,000 a week to around 43,000 with the advent of Newcastle (based on my own records).

Approximately 18% of PSL spectators in the first two years watched their games at the ACT's National Athletic Stadium. Newcastle's phenomenal success in terms of attendance figures has decreased the ACT's statistics somewhat and, indeed, recent attendances at Canberra City games have been disappointing.

However, when Canberra City is not at home ACT fans are. Having had their soccer appetites whetted by PSL games it would appear that ACT fans no longer accept just any soccer, no matter what the standard. If they did one could expect to see top ACT clubs benefitting from their attendance when PSL games are not available to them.

Quite the reverse is true, unfortunately.

Local competitions no longer hold the attraction they once did.

With the exception of games between arch-rivals, West Woden

Juventus and Croatia Deakin, crowds at ACT Soccer Federation games rarely exceed 250. On a fine day a West Woden Juventus — Croatia Deakin game will draw between 1,500 and 2,000 spectators. More than is enjoyed by many PSL clubs on any weekend.

Inter-Monaro, the NSW Pepsi State League side that is partnering West Woden Juventus in a bid to enter a Canberra-Queanbeyan side in the PSL, attracts an average of 2,000 spectators at home. When it moved its venue to the National Athletic Stadium for one game it drew over 3,000.

Figures such as these must add weight to the argument that ACT soccer fans want value for money. They want to see top soccer and, at present, PSL is as high as they can go.

If they were all true blue Canberra City fans why are they conspicuous in their absence at games featuring City's reserves, the Canberra City Roos, which includes PSL players such as former soccerroo, Harry Williams as well as the popular Keni Kawalewa, George Bailev, David Lindennayer, Bernie Lustica, Stephen Hogg — an Australian youth international, together with Rudi Gaudetorff's youth squad members, Glen Havelock and Peter 'Chevone'?

A recent assessment of junior development by ASF Junior Development Officer, Brian Emery, places the ACT, with a 21.5 playing percentage, second only to NSW at 24.5.

With this nursery potential the argument for, or against, a second PSL side from the ACT should be purely academic. In fact, ACT should be arguing the case for three, with an option of a fourth. It is, after all, more than twice as strong as Victoria (9.37%) in junior playing potential and almost twice that of Queensland (11.8%).

Victoria has three PSL sides, Queensland two and New South Wales has more than its fair share with six.

If the imbalance of PSL representation continues into the 1980's there is a grave danger that the success of the PSL in the ACT will diminish. What is more frightening is that interest in soccer will diminish, too.

If the fans are starved of PSL games now, with games often three weeks apart, and no prospect of their appetite being more frequently satisfied in the future, recent converts to our code will soon lose interest and return to their former interests. In fact, this may already be happening.

Recent attendance at Canberra City games has shown a sharp decline although its game against Newcastle KB United will undoubtedly give the ACT side a much-needed boost.

The truth of the matter is, and cannot be overlooked, that ACT fans want PSL soccer — and they want it more frequently.

Well aware of this Queanbeyan's Marco Polo Club and Canberra's Italo-Australian Club are determined to pursue their joint aim of membership in the PSL, combining the successful Inter-Monaro and West Woden Juventus clubs to form a much needed second PSL side for the ACT's thousands of fans.

Even if their application fails this year, as some demoralising reports would have them believe, they have no intention of pulling out. Negotiations are well advanced to amalgamate the two clubs, with a view to submitting further applications, if necessary, and to competing at higher levels of competition than are presently offered at ACT level.

Until recently West Woden Juventus looked forward to, and supported, an ACTSF proposal to form a South-Eastern League to expand its competitive horizons, whether the PSL application was accepted or not. The combined strength of West Woden Juventus and Inter-Monaro would be sufficient to support teams in both PSL and the proposed league.

However, a recent suggestion that Wollongong may be excluded as a result of a compromise between the ACTSF and NSWSE, has dampened the enthusiasm of West Woden Juventus for this league.

Juventus president, Joe Fusca, has clearly stated that his club needs the challenge of stronger competition. "We have the players and the money to go looking for it. If Wollongong is omitted from the proposed league of the competition will be weakened and we might as well look elsewhere."

If the PSL is serious in its intention to boost the appeal of its competition it couldn't go far wrong in consolidating its appeal in areas where a thirst for more has been created.

Preston seeks support from Melbourne clubs

By LAURIE SCHWAB

Victorian State league club Preston Makedonia is arranging a meeting with Melbourne's three Philips League clubs to gain support for its application for PSL membership.

Makedonia's manager-coach Tony Vrzina said he wanted to outline to club presidents Sam Pappasavas (South Melbourne), Tony Kovac (Footscray) and Jim Manganopolous (Heidelberg) the advantages of having another Melbourne team in the big league.

The addition of Makedonia would increase the total pay of local Philips League followers.

It is reasonable to assume that when Makedonia plays away, its supporters will watch one of the other three teams — particularly Footscray.

Rivalry between the four clubs would stimulate interest and therefore boost crowd figures.

At the moment, South Melbourne and Heidelberg can look forward to one bumper crowd each, when they play each other.

Footscray's biggest crowds come from home matches against South Melbourne and Heidelberg.

The addition of Makedonia would add another big pay day to the other three clubs.

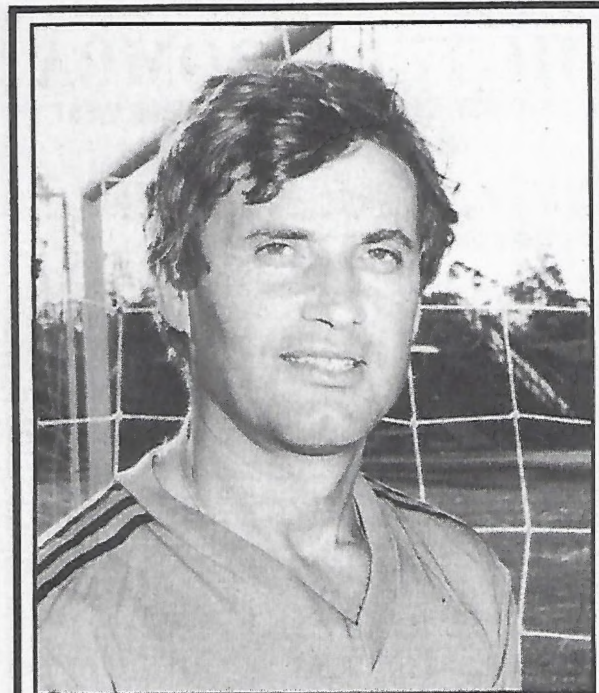

At the moment, Makedonia plays in opposition to PSL fixtures.

The present structure of the league appears lopsided. Sydney is represented by five teams, Melbourne by only three and Brisbane by two whereas Queenslanders in the know believe that it would be more realistic for Brisbane to have only one team in the league.

Makedonia would have the added advantage of being able to draw fans away from home, the way Footscray does.

Few other clubs are able to do this.

Most PSL clubs have lost support since the league started. Makedonia's arguments may therefore gain the support Vrzina is seeking.

BAKER BEATS BUDGET

A retired Canberra baker, Jim Grice, didn't need either the Treasurer, Mr. Howard, or the Opposition Leader, Mr. Hayden, to help him make dough last week.

While the Treasurer was delivering his Budget speech in the House, Jim, 65, learned that he and his wife Mary, 54, had won $271,813.30 on the Pools.

"I couldn't give a hoot about the Budget now," joked Jim. "Just ask Mr. Howard how much he wants."

Jim and Mary are now retired at Batemans Bay, but he was formerly managing director of Canberra's Brownqueen Bakery and president of Canberra's Master Bakers' Association.

Both are keen bowlers, and to make it a winning day all round, Mary played in her first pennant bowls match and won.

They celebrated the win at Canberra's Lakeside International Hotel just one short mile from Parliament House. With them were their youngest daughter Julie, 28, and her husband Laurie Atkins, and their son Jim, 26, and his wife Mary Anne, who all live in Canberra.

Big game for Footscray

St. George, Brisbane Lions and Footscray J.U.S.T. continue their fight against relegation, Heidelberg United pushes on towards the top four and big league soccer comes to Gosford in this week's Philips League round.

With St. George and Brisbane Lions both chasing a possible four points from two matches this week, J.U.S.T. is in danger of slipping back to second-last spot.

To prevent this, J.U.S.T. must beat WEST Adelaide at Middle Park on Saturday, or at least draw.

Previous results, 1977: WA 1-0, 1-0; 1978: Foots. 2-1, 2-1; 1979: WA 5-0.

St. George's struggle to get out of the relegation zone will be made difficult tonight (Wednesday) by Heidelberg United which has to keep winning to get into the top four.

If Heidelberg produces its best form, it should be able to crack the determined Saints.

Previous results: 1977: H'berg 5-2, 2-2; 1978: St. G 4-1, 2-4; 1979: H'berg 1-0.

After three days' rest, St. George lines up again on Sunday, against Brisbane City at St. George Stadium.

City's forwards aren't as dangerous as those of Heidelberg, so Saints could snatch a draw.

Previous results: 1977: St.G 3-2, 1-1; 1978: St.G 4-1, 2-0; 1979: BC 4-0.

Brisbane Lions have shown tremendous tenacity in recent weeks in drawing with Newcastle, Sydney City, and Brisbane City and losing narrowly to West Adelaide 2-3. Full credit to new coach Matt Carson.

Lions achieved their draw with Newcastle without its top striker Tony Brennan. If he returns, the Lions should be able to win both their matches this week—against APIA tonight (Wednesday) and Sydney Olympic on Sunday. The home ground advantage in both matches is worth almost a point.

Previous results: v APIA (using Western Suburbs for APIA)—1977: BL 4-0, WS 3-0; 1978: BL 3-1, 2-2; 1979: APIA 2-1.

v Sydney Olympic — 1977: SO 2-0, 1-0; 1978: SO 2-1, BL 4-2; 1979: BL 1-0.

The experimental game between Sydney City and Newcastle KB United at Graham Park in Gosford is backed by an extensive publicity and promotion campaign which should ensure a large crowd.

The outcome could go either way. Sydney City looked bad before last Sunday but suddenly came good with a 3-0 thrashing of APIA, whereas Newcastle slipped badly after leading Lions 2-0 to finish with a 2-2 draw.

Both teams must keep on picking up points to make sure of finishing in the top four.

Sydney City appears to have a midfield advantage due to the experience and strength of Murray Barnes, Ian Souness and John Stevenson but the skills of Ken Boden, Joe Senkalski and Graham Heys could offset this disadvantage.

Previous results: 1978: SC 1-0, Newc 4-1; 1979: SC 1-0.

HAKOAH MEMBERS DEMAND ANSWERS

Several members emphasised after last Wednesday's fixture against Brisbane Lions at the Sydney Sports Ground that such a scenario will gain growing credibility unless the Board of Directors issues an immediate and unequivocal denial.

Opponents of this alleged tactic by sections of the leadership also point to several other relevant factors on which they base their discontent.

• Hakoah's glittering social club was established almost a decade ago for the sole announced purpose of ensuring a continuing basis of available finance for the maintenance of a team in the top grade of Australian soccer.

• Since the establishment of the social club the team has been financed out of the establishment's revenues on the initial understanding that soccer was the main purpose for the creation of the club. Thus the Board of Directors has no authority or moral right to even suggest anything to the contrary.

• Absolutely no effort was made to professionally promote the soccer club until after the name change, when suddenly money was made available in abundant quantities ("Why wasn't Hakoah promoted to the extent that was tried with Sydney City?" was one question.)

• In view of the abject failure of the name change farce, the club should go public in admitting failure of the policy and voice its opinion accordingly on the continuing push by the ASF to make such a change compulsory around the nation at all levels.

A call is expected to appear in the "Australian Jewish Times" this week, calling on the Board of Directors to convene an urgent meeting of what remains of the club's soccer supporters, who are demanding clearcut answers to a series of questions about the future.

One supporter foreshadowed that if satisfactory answers are not forthcoming a motion will be put to change the soccer team's name from Sydney City back to Hakoah.

"Although one could be forgiven for not realising it for all the 'emphasis' the club has put on it, 1979 marks the 40th anniversary of Sydney Hakoah," one club stalwart remarked.

"If we are to disappear from top soccer I and others like me would rather see us kicked out of the PSL for being Hakoah, than die a quiet and unobtrusive death as Sydney City just to make a few ASF leaders in their ivory towers comfortable," he said.

The situation with Hakoah is sad, one can almost say tragic—and a warning to other Australian soccer clubs, which they can only ignore at their own peril.

Mimis for Hellas

Mimis Papaioannou will play for both Western Suburbs and South Melbourne Hellas at Olympic Park tonight (Wednesday).

The match has been arranged to see how Papaioannou fits into the Hellas line-up.

Hellas is interested in perhaps signing Papaioannou for the 1980 Philips League season.

He will play the first half for Western Suburbs and the second half for Hellas in tonight's match, which starts at 8 pm.

His last game in Australia will be against Box Hill at Wembley Park, Box Hill, on Sunday. He returns to Greece on September 6.

Western Suburbs' decision to sign the former captain of Greece proved a masterstroke, as Papaioannou has scored six goals in Wests' march to the First Division championship and promotion to the State League.

USSR, Poland triumph

From PETER BENT in Tokyo

The Soviet Union served notice on Sunday afternoon that it will be the team to beat in the 1979 World Youth Tournament for the Coca-Cola Cup by routing Hungary 5-1 in the opening matches of Group D at the Mitsuzawa Stadium in Yokohama.

Uruguay defeated Guinea 5-0 on Sunday night in the other match at the same stadium before 8,000 spectators.

It looked as if Hungary might give the Russians—who won the championship in the first world youth tournament in Tunis in June 1977—a battle when the first half ended in a 1-1 tie.

Hungary's Jozsef Kardos scored in the eighth minute for the lead until Russian halfback Igor Ponomarev tied it up in the 23rd minute.

The Russians amazed the spectators when they broke the deadlock only 10 seconds after the kickoff in the second half when captain Sergei Stukashyev dribbled and scored from close range.

Thereafter the Hungarians never had a chance.

Aleksandr Zavarov headed in a goal after a corner kick at 56:10 and the brilliant Oleg Taran scored easily at 70:30 and 77:30.

Paton free — a goal!

HEIDELBERG 1
ADELAIDE CITY 0

Goal: Paton 79th.
Ground: Olympic Park.
Weather: Rainy.
Crowd: About 4000.
Referee: Doug Rennie 9.
Cautions: Muniz, Northcote (AC).

This defeat left Adelaide City with little hope of qualifying for the 1979 top four series. At least it is in the Phillips Cup final.

City did not have the ammunition to fight Heidelberg on the latter's terms, so it came to Melbourne content to defend and play on the break.

Coach Rasic used man-to-man marking in the hope of beating the Heidelberg danger men. Bobby Russell marked Jamie Paton, Bugey Nyshokhus took Branko Buljevic, Glenn Dodds had Gary Cole, Brian Northcote marked Jimmy Rooney and Charlie Villani shadowed Jim Campbell.

Rasic asked for long through balls on which John Nyshokhus could outrun Pat Bannan. There were a few such breaks early, the best of them bringing a fine save from Mike Pye after Nyshokhus had left Bannan a long way behind.

However, Nyshokhus found it harder and harder to get away as sweeper John Zenden, and right back Arthur McMillan went from strength to strength.

As the game developed, Robert Marwe became Adelaide City's most dangerous attacker. Playing deep on the right flank, Marwe was quiet for long periods, giving Jim Tansey a false sense of security. Marwe would then ghost through stealthily and appear in front of goal for a shot or header.

Not that there were many of such shots or headers, for Adelaide City was in deep trouble from the start of the match as Heidelberg pressed forward, trying everything it knows to get through the enmeshed defence.

John Zenden, the Heidelberg sweeper, probed the man of the match, Arthur McMillan, the right back, didn't put a foot wrong, making some timely tackles late in the game, and Pat Bannan, although beaten a few times by Nyshokhus, remained a tower of strength throughout the game.

Jimmy Rooney and Jim Campbell were active in the midfield, but Campbell could have delivered earlier passes a few times to realise the full potential of his great runs.

The Heidelberg attacking threat had a hand time as they were always constructive when they found an inch of space in which to move.

In the 25th minute Marwe put the ball into the net by receiving a short defensive clearance in a goalmouth scramble but referee Doug Rennie, who did a good job, rules offside and disallowed the goal.

One of the best one-two movements by Heidelberg came soon afterwards, with Rooney combining with Cole before going to the side of the match. Bobby Russell bulldozed his way out of defence through the middle of the field, past Bannan and into the area, but McMillan slide-tackled well.

The winning goal came in the 78th minute. Buljevic crossed from the left, Cole brought it down and Paton lashed the ball into the net.

Adelaide City replaced Villani with Sergio Melia and in the last dangerous move of the match, Bobby Russell bulldozed his way out of defence through the middle of the field, past Bannan and into the area, but McMillan slide-tackled well.

A NIGHT TO FORGET

Scorers: Fairbrother 43rd min for Lions, Trenter 67th min for Sydney City.
Ground: Sydney Sports Ground.
Crowd: About 500.
Cautions: Kershaw, Souness (Sydney City), Bennett, Brennan (Lions).
Weather: Fine and cool.
Referee: Doug Rennie 9.

It was a miserable 90 minutes at the Sydney Sports Ground.

Slickers in top gear

SYDNEY CITY 3
APIA 0

Ground: Wentworth Park.
Crowd: 4620.
Referee: Tony Boskovic 9.
Yellow cards: O'Donnell, Dempsey (A), Trenter (SC).
Goals: Barnes (42), Trenter (46), Silva (74).

Sydney City, reeling from some disappointing results in the past two weeks turned it on for the spectators at Wentworth Park to demolish APIA by a clear three-goal margin.

Any possible chance APIA might have had of snatching one of the top four spots vanished with this loss.

City's performance delighted the coach Gerry Chalk. Coach of the Year for 1978, Chalk was on the verge of sacking quite a few of his stars if they failed to deliver the goods in the Sydney City. Among those who were heading for the second grade was none other than the brilliant Hilton Silva.

City didn't take long to expose holes in the APIA defence, with Watson leading Turnbull in the very first seconds to create space on the right flank before crossing into the area, but Greg Woodhouse in goal for APIA was equal to the task.

With Silva showing a lot of the flair that made him one of the most feared wingers in the world and Watson making life difficult for Turnbull, Peter Wilson and Jim Dempsey were stretched from one side to the other.

APIA attacked rarely but with venom, and almost always from a cross by Warren Turnbull. With O'Connor and Clarke covering the cross it looked an easy chore for the City defence, but somehow O'Connor stuck his foot to meet the cross and put it past Clarke. However the ball struck the post!

With three minutes to go in the first half, City scored. Ian Souness picked up a poor clearance by an APIA defender and floated the ball back into the area. Murray Barnes controlled perfectly to beat Dempsey and hook a right-footer into the far corner. Woodhouse was badly positioned at the near post and appeared to have reacted too late, allowing the ball to almost trickle in off the far post.

Only a minute after the restart, City knocked the wind out of APIA with a well-taken goal by Mark Trenter. Stevenson crossed from the left and Barnes beat the advancing Woodhouse with a header that floated across to the right for Trenter to latch onto and head between two APIA defenders into the net.

APIA had its chance to close the gap only two minutes later. Dempsey rose high to meet a cross by Butler and nod it down for Carruthers who managed to beat Clarke with a spectacular overhead kick but the ball struck the post yet again!

With APIA desperately trying to bridge the gap, City broke into a counter attacking move that saw Souness face Woodhouse in the 57th minute. It looked No. 3 all the way but for a spectacular drive by Woodhouse that saved a certain goal.

Coach Ray Richards replaced O'Donnell and Turnbull with Drews and Pullen, hoping to inject some life into the team, but soon after City scored the goal of the match with Silva heading past Woodhouse following a cross by Stevenson.

The closing 15 minutes belonged to the Slickers, but they failed to notch the all-important No. 4 to earn a bonus point. In fact it was APIA who should have scored through Carruthers when he faced Clarke minutes before the end, but he made a brilliant save from a point-blank range shot by Carruthers to cap a great display by the ex-Socceroo.

Uninspiring soccer, a miniscule crowd, and a general air of disinterest in the clash between final four aspirants Sydney City and relegation candidates Brisbane Lions.

The general atmosphere was not aided by the fact that in a fit of apparent false economy the PSL decided — for the second Wednesday in succession — not to advertise the match in the daily press.

"Thus, unless you were in the 'know' the kick-off time was a mystery."

As for Watson, the quiet

Mark 'fed' by Sharne

MARCONI 4
BRISBANE CITY 3

Ground: Perry Park.
Scorers: Marconi, Jankovic 4th, 62nd, 82nd, Krncevic 27th, 68th, Campbell 55th, 65th, Gaffney 90th.
Weather: Fine and sunny.
Crowd: 6535.
Referee: S. Mellings 9.
Cautions: Kelso, Ratcliffe (BC).

Marconi almost certainly set the seal on the 1979 Phillips Soccer League title with a heart-stopping 4-3 win over Brisbane City at that point their nearest rivals, at Perry Park.

The big crowd, although the home side lost, was given adequate compensation by 90 minutes of non-stop action and a welter of thrilling goalscoring action.

City did extremely well in the final analysis to come back from a 2-0 half time deficit and, for a time, Marconi seemed to be struggling a little, to indicate that the teams' 3-3 draw in the first round could well have been repeated.

Then, in the fourth minute, the first occasion Marconi entered City's penalty area, came the first breakthrough. Tony Henderson sent Eddie Krncevic away on the left.

Krncevic crossed well, Kim Wishart again displayed his vulnerability in crossball situations and Sharne was able to head inwards at the far post, providing Jankovic with the first of three goals.

City should have equalised in the 24th minute when a George Potter chip was headed down by Kelso, but Caldwell, with Maher at his mercy blasted the chance a fraction wide.

Marconi sprang back only three minutes later and made it 2-0 when Roberto Vieri took a corner and put it past Krncevic, who was in the goal.

City's most important move at half time was to replace Campbell with Bobby Campbell and the big striker made all the difference to the home side's attack.

City came back into the match in the 55th minute when Eddie Krncevic, who Marconi failed to clear, Gaffney was on the ground when he scooped a pass over to Campbell, who looped his shot past Maher into the upper opposite corner.

But seven minutes later, Marconi re-asserted their grip with another flying Sharne advance, in which he shook off Billy Wilkinson and provided the perfect pass which Jankovic bundled in past Wishart.

Frank Pimblett crossed into the Marconi area a minute later, and Campbell almost made it 2-2 but just wide. It was at this stage that Marconi again looked a little vulnerable and Campbell capitalised on the situation.

He began a move on the left hand touchline, which sent Kelso galloping away towards the backline, where he crossed perfectly towards the far post.

Low backed up and headed goalwards, where he palmed it onto the bar and Campbell followed up to dive forward and head home.

Campbell strenuously directed his team to keep pumping high balls into the area and, on several occasions, he had the defence under considerable pressure.

But trailing 2-3 and again trailing 3-4, the Lions were punished by Sharne's dazzling speed, when he broke away from the half-way line, leaving three defenders in his wake and once again his mate, who was there to do the timely deed.

City were not done with, however, and in the 90th minute, Gaffney again reduced the deficit to that single goal when he finished off a goalmouth scramble, shortly after Campbell had scored a shot across the face of the goal.

Best side in PSL?

WEST ADELAIDE 0
ST. GEORGE 1

Scorer: Cotton 35.
Ground: Hindmarsh Stadium.
Crowd: 2,512.
Conditions: Wet and slippery.

Cautions: Gnani (St. George), Kambas (West Adelaide).
Referee: Don Campbell.

Raul Blanco's St. George, arguably the best side in the PSL on present form, etched out a determined 1-0 win on rain-soaked Hindmarsh Stadium.

A 35th minute goal by Ray Cotton gave Saints the points and increased their hopes of avoiding the last two positions on the table.

They defended stoutly, attacked vigorously and punctuated the match with some refined skills.

Meanwhile, West Adelaide looked anything but a team defying its title.

It failed to master the slippery conditions and looked a ragged unit for long periods.

Certainly the absence of John Kosmina (suspended) deflected West, but too many of its players had little idea how to play in the conditions.

The two players who can be exonerated are Peter Tymczyszyn and young substitute striker John Batchelor.

Tymczyszyn hardly committed an error all day and was the most dependable man in the back.

At the other end of the field, Batchelor played intelligently and showed that coach Tom Forde should persevere with him.

He rarely held onto the ball and continually played a short pass to a team-mate, which was the right tactic considering the conditions.

And the young, ginger-haired striker also showed he wasn't afraid to shoot. With as bit of luck his cracking 25-metre shot in the 43rd minute could have been the equaliser.

West had the first major chance of the game as early as the seventh minute when Graham Norris blasted the ball against the far post.

Saints settled down after this early let-off and goalkeeper Martin Crook prevented a certain goal with a great save from a cracking Tom Mihajlovic 20-metre drive.

But there was little Crook could do to stop Cotton scoring in the 35th minute.

The energetic striker latched onto a pass, which should have been cut out by a defender, and tore towards goal before clipping the ball past two defenders on the goal-line.

West had its opportunities in the second half but its finishing was poor.

Peter Boyle had a great chance in the 78th minute after Batchelor had sent a dummy to the defence, but he shot wide from 12 metres.

And two minutes later Ian McGreor got on his knees to head a Tymczyszyn cross into the side netting.

In between those two chances, Garrie Dooley took the Lions to the penalty area but his far-post cross was too powerful to be effective.

Kevin Keegan is reported to be in his last season with Hamburger SV, keeping the England captain who went to West Germany from Liverpool, is expected to join the Washington Diplomats next year.

Hamburger SV is to get a transfer fee of at least $700,000 and Keegan will collect $1.5 million.

Newcastle KB United's assault on a position in the top four lost a little momentum when they played yet another draw with Brisbane Lions.

Brisbane Lions, Newcastle's "jinx" team, staged a good recovery in the second half to wipe out a two-goal deficit and salvage a valuable point.

Newcastle had gone to a 2-0 lead just on the stroke of half time when Col Curran crashed home a seven-metre sizzler from a Ken Boden cut-back.

Earlier in the game, it was Boden himself who took the locals one up when he cleverly deflected a Peter Willis shot after a scramble in the Brisbane Lions goalmouth.

Although the score at half-time would have suggested a clear Newcastle superiority, the visitors' all-round experience was clearly evident.

Brisbane Lions just failed to open their account on several occasions.

Their best opportunity, however, was in the 30th minute when one of Bill Summerscales' clearances rebounded off Barrie Fairbrother but the former English Second Division striker, with Roy Drinkwater in net, missed.

At the other end of the field, Batchelor played intelligently and showed that coach Tom Forde should persevere with him.

He rarely held onto the ball and continually played a short pass to a team-mate, which was the right tactic considering the conditions.

Laing at full back

SYDNEY OLYMPIC 0
CANBERRA CITY 0

Scorers: Pratten Park.
Weather: Fine.
Crowd: 1642.
Referee: Rampley 8.

The lack of finishing ability in the Sydney Olympic and Canberra City line-ups was very evident at Pratten Park.

Both teams were busy in mid field and Olympic mounted many attacks from there, finishing with numerous crosses from the wings.

Throughout the first half, this produced only one goal chance to Andy Scott, following a miss by Steve Hosowski from a cross from Olympic left back Ian Rowden.

The cross beat Hosowski's outstretched hands but Scott headed wide.

Canberra attacked less than Olympic and, usually, these attacks came through the middle but only two good chances came their way.

One was to Ian McLaren, following a through pass which caught Olympic marker Derek Laing on the wrong side of the Canberra winger.

McLaren should have scored but shot past the post.

Bernard Lustica had the other Canberra goalchance, following a typical crazy dribble by Terry Byrne but he also shot past.

Byrne, surprisingly, was operating in mid-field with Isaac Farrell operating in Byrne's usual central strikers' role.

Olympic's Laing was also in a strange role at right back, to make way for Alex Jamieson, recovered from injury. Jamieson was prominent in attack for Olympic in the first half.

The pattern of play continued throughout the second half with Olympic threatening only at set plays when they threw their big men, Roden, Bell and later McIntosh forward, and Canberra on break-aways.

The Canberra breakaways were usually mounted by Isaac Farrell, who operated between the two strikers Lustica and McLaren, who was always dangerous, and his midfield.

Byrne was even further back in a deep central midfield role, where he was buried in the mass of players.

Mike Cross was effective in mid-field for Olympic though, strangely, this extremely fleet-footed player was on the right of the midfield with Peter Raskopoulos, a very powerful right-footed player on the left instead.

Cross did a good job covering right back Laing, who continued his attacking role in the second half.

The quality of balls hit to the penalty box by Cross and Raskopoulos however suffered as they delayed getting the ball on their best foot or lost accuracy when hitting them in with their weaker foot.

Headers by replacement striker McIntosh and Clive Eaton and blocked shots by Eaton and Scott were all Olympic could muster in the second period, while Canberra had good chances to McLaren and Byrne, both saved by Peter Wilson. In the final minute Hogg missed from a Farrell cross.

So a lot of energy and involvement by both teams came to naught, because of the lack of finishing which has enabled Marconi to score more goals than these two teams combined.

Canberra City management will have to turn their attention to the closed season.

A very, very ordinary Lions team managed to reassert itself and it was no great shock to see Barrie Fairbrother open the scoring a few minutes before half-time.

As a matter of fact, they could have struck gold earlier, had it not been for the magnificent form of former Socceroo goalie Todd Clarke, who saved at least three certain goals.

City was in there trying but without much effect.

Things started to improve for them only after big Mark Trenter replaced the hobbling Hilton Silva in the 55th minute and 11 minutes later repaid

Lujic's one — man show

SOUTH MELBOURNE 1
FOOTSCRAY JUST 1

Scorers: Lujic (Foots); Kantonis (SM).
Weather: Middle Park.
Crowd: About 4,000.

With their future in the Phillips League at stake, both teams took the field under tremendous pressure.

Mike Pye was posted to the left back position and Kyriakos Kyriakoulas was brought into the side and assigned the difficult task of marking Footscray's colourful winger Zdenko Lujic.

This push-around not only failed to produce the desired result, for Lujic was Footscray's unstoppable attacking avenue in the first half, but made the defence look suspect under pressure for the entire game.

Peter Ollerton, in his destructive role, also contributed positively, keeping Evans out of the game for most of the time.

It took Footscray only minutes to engineer their first attacking move, with Kyriakoulas outplaying Picioane before laying the ball to Palinkas. Unmarked, Palinkas broke forward only to be intercepted by Pye.

Locking South in defence, Footscray desperately tried to beat former club-mate Dennis Boland.

Kyriakoulas almost handed the first goal to Footscray.

Unjustifiably, Kyriakoulas delayed the ball in front of his goal allowing Lujic to move into the area, regain the ball and shoot wide.

Even so, on the game developed into a Lujic monologue.

In the 34th minute, Lujic rounded Kyriakoulas but his cross, aimed at Palinkas was cleared by Pye.

Smith's only threat but the diminutive striker fell against a well-constructed Footscray defence led by superb Jim Kondarios.

Swearing up lots of pressure, South managed to hold Footscray to a scoreless first half.

South gained some composure after Carr's replacement by George Christopoulos.

But it was the midfield problem that South failed to remedy. Alan Davidson wasted his energy with purposeless runs and Evans proved unable to mark the midfield.

Lujic had the defence on its toes in the 48th minute. Quickly, Lujic attached himself to a through ball by Ollerton but was finally beaten by Boland, who advanced off his goal line to clear the ball with his foot.

Boland was called upon to save his team again in the 50th when Hazzabent put a cross into the goal.

Outjumping the defence, Ollerton headed the ball back for Palinkas, whose shot was brilliantly saved by Boland.

Boland came to the rescue of his team in the 67th. He spotted a ball in the air to parry a point-blank shot by Picioane.

The deflection was picked up by Palinkas on the far post, where he turned it forcing Boland to dive to his left lower corner to collect.

Footscray took the lead on the 74th minute. Palinkas took a free kick from the right edge of the area. His ground level shot was back-headed by Rujic to nearby (Lujic, who beat Boland from one metre).

In a desperate move, South's coach brought Kantonis onto the scene for Bertie Luton.

The move paid dividends five minutes later when Kantonis scored the equaliser.

Kalafatis initiated a move along the touch line but Lujic's shot was blocked by Boland on the run and crossed the ball inside the area. Kantonis came from nowhere to head the ball home in style.

All in all a night to forget in

Of the match itself, early in the piece it seemed that Sydney City managed to shake off the blues induced by its loss against Brisbane City the week before.

Souness missed in a promising situation, and then Stevenson — playing in the unaccustomed position of right winger — was only slightly off-target with a scorching in the fifth minute.

However, soon after the home team's standard dropou

The climb of Pines

As soccer grows at the top level, the headlines are taken up more and more by the big-time clubs — Marconi, APIA, Heidelberg, Brisbane City, Newcastle, Canberra, Adelaide City, Preston Make-donia, Sydney Croatia... and the local leagues. Frankston Pines is a glowing example of this growth.

Frankston Pines Soccer Club is at last getting the recognition, it so richly deserves. Their first year in the Metropolitan League has seen their senior team as Fourth Division leaders for most of the season, and at the time of writing, their reserves are top of the reserve league.

The home of Frankston Pines is at Monterey Boulevard, where their facilities are the envy of all visiting teams. There are two excellent enclosed grounds and a third training pitch, that is fully flood-lit. The changing rooms are separate from the main club rooms, and a stand has been erected to give a bit of shelter to their die-hard supporters.

Extensions to the existing clubrooms have already begun and it's hoped these will be completed by Christmas 1979. It's in this department that the members express their thanks to a very understanding Frankston Council.

As well as the two senior teams, Frankston Pines have always had their fair share of juniors, and this year is no exception.

There are nine junior teams with age groups from Under 8's, through to Under 16's making an average total of 120 boys.

Frankston Pines are one of the few clubs who register all their juniors free of charge. They are also supplied with a club strip, the only stipulation being that the boys supply their own socks, due to health reasons.

Obviously, with this amount of juniors, you've got to look admiringly at the job being done by junior secretary Billy Rust, and all the coaches and managers who spend their free time coaching these kids. No praise can be high enough.

It's often said that the strength of a club lies within its juniors and Frankston Pines have proved this theory to be true. Out of the 16 players used for first team duty this year, no fewer than nine have come up through the junior ranks, surely something to be proud of, and a feat of which not too many clubs can boast.

The foundation of Frankston Pines goes back to the mid 1960's when it was known as "The Pines Boys Soccer Club," due to the fact that they started off with juniors only.

A lot of the parents also enjoyed a bit of a "kick around" on Sunday afternoons, so it was only natural that a senior team was formed. After a succession of friendly games, they entered into competition and in their first season, 1967, finished runners-up in the South Yarra league.

The following year, "the Pines" went one step better by going on to win their first-ever championship, becoming premiers of the District League.

The players who were part of this historic event were: P. Blasby, B. Jackson, T. Tennent, J. Johnson, B. Lewis, J. Godwin, L. Woodward, J. Ward, G. Paulding, M. Bower, G. Law, A. Fairclough, D. Bonar (Sen.), P. Cassup and B. Millar.

As there was no promotion in those days, Frankston Pines had to be content playing their soccer in the lower divisions and in 1972 they were District League Champions once again.

During these years in the wilderness, Frankston Pines Soccer Club, was rapidly growing in membership and had gathered a group of loyal supporters who eventually were to make the club the thriving success it is today.

It was these supporters, who in 1972, totally financed the building of new clubrooms, to the tune of $25,000.

Season 1973 saw Frankston Pines competing in the Provisional League and for the second successive year, they were league champions, but the victory celebrations were somewhat jaded by the fact that they would be in the same competition the following year, as there was still no promotion to the Metropolitan League.

Over the next three years, the Pines continued to hold their own in the Provisional League, finishing in the top four each

SECOND SEASON IN ROW

DENNIS DALEY

Season 1977 saw the V.S.F. reorganise the Provisional League and introduce promotion to the Metropolitan League. This was great news for Frankston Pines.

For some reason another, a few vacancies for entry to the 4th division of the Metropolitan League became available, and although being a good ground, and facilities far superior than most, a couple of other clubs got the nod ahead of Frankston Pines.

Mooreabbin.

Frankston Pines' first successful side — District League champions of 1968. Back row from left: T. Tennent, G. Law, B. Jackson, B. Miller, B. Lewis, G. Paulding, D. Bonar, Sen., P. Blasby, P. Cassup. Front row: J. Ward, L. Woodward, J. Godwyn, A. Fairclough, J. Johnson, M. Bower, J. Thomas (manager).

Coburg and Arthur Cherry from Dandenong. A few games into the season the squad was further strengthened by the addition of Billy Lewis, John Pryde and Gordon Cameron from Frankston City.

During the course of the season, Pines lost a few players, and unfortunately failed to find the consistency required to win championships, finishing fourth to Werribee, Fawkner, and Geelong.

The bright note of the season was getting through to the final of the Provisional League Cup, after a fortunate win over Greenborough in the semi-finals.

Opponents in the final, were none other than league winners, Werribee, who were the only side to Frankston Pines' squad for the 1978 Provisional League Cup final.

Dennis Bennett took over as team captain from Billy Lewis, who returned to the UK, for that season.

New players signed were, John Irvine, Russel Bexton, Godwin Hili, and Colin Mitchell who was regained after spending a season with Slavia.

Frankston Pines started the season showing plenty of determination, and carried on that way, going 17 games undefeated before losing at home to Hamlyn Rangers.

In those 17 games, they scored 50 goals to 14. From the Hamlyn game, Pines struggled to find form, and finished the last five games with only one win and two draws. Fortunately this had no bearing on the end result, and Frankston Pines were champions for 1978.

For the second year in succession, Pines won their way through to the final of the Provisional League Cup and the players were keen to emulate Werribee by winning the double.

The opponents this time were Nunawading City, and in a tough game, that saw three players being sent off. Frankston Pines were beaten 3-2 and again missed out on the elusive Provisional League Cup.

The reserves, coached by Graham Watson, finished in second place with promise being shown by some young players, and the third team finished in third position.

The climb of Pines

coaching position were received, and the job went to Tommy Randles, who had previously coached at Slavia and in New Zealand. He soon had the players organised, and a good run in the Dockerty Cup, beating Fawkner and State League club, Albion Rovers was a sign that Frankston Pines would be among the Division Four leaders.

Reserves coach this year is again G. Watson who, with the help of a few experienced players, has done a superb job in blending his young squad, into a team challenging for the championship.

Away from the playing side of things are the Ladies Auxiliary, who have done a tremendous job this year, and every year, by backing the club financially, and working effortlessly in other areas, such as helping to raise money to send 40 juniors to Adelaide free of charge. This is one "Pines" team that surely deserves a championship.

In the words of the Frankston Pines song, "There's many unsung heroes" and indeed there are many who have put in long hours and hard work, but none more so than the two men who have shared the president's job over the past eight years — David Bonar (Sen.) in 1972-73-74-76 and John Hodgson 1975-77-78-79.

FEIGENBAUM GOES HOME

International striker Shaya Feigenbaum has left Hakoah St. Kilda after only five games. He has returned to Israel.

Feigenbaum, who played for Israel in the 1970 World Cup finals, has accepted a contract with Israeli First Division club Shimshon-Tel Aviv.

Hakoah's initial agreement with Feigenbaum was for a four-game trial period before a contract was signed, but the club expected the high-scoring forward to stay in Australia. Hakoah chairman Dennis Krongold said the club had decided not to retain Feigenbaum. He denied rumours that Feigenbaum had demanded an astronomical fee to stay with the club, and that the club's refusal caused the departure.

"There were no problems on the financial side," said Krongold, "as the club's offer was satisfactory to Shaya."

"The reason we did not sign Feigenbaum was the harsh treatment he had received in the games he played. Hakoah doesn't want to see a top class player wiped out by butchers who call themselves defenders. It's not fair to subject an international player to this treatment."

Krongold added that Hakoah's second Israeli international, Shraga Topolanski, was also treated harshly, and had to leave the field against Croydon City last week because of vigorous tackles on him.

"At one game Topolanski and Feigenbaum played together, the ground announcer made special mention of the two and the numbers they were wearing," said Dennis. "I'm sure several opposition players made a mental note of the numbers, and made sure they were not allowed to show their class."

Hakoah entertains league leader Frankston City at Middle Park this Sunday in what is a vital game. Hakoah has no hope of reaching the top four, and is five points clear of relegation.

Frankston City, however, has everything to go for. But Danny McCuskey is expected to be suspended after collecting 12 penalty points.

Frankston must get a result against Hakoah, which has an excellent record against the top sides. Hakoah beat Makedonia twice, took a point off Croatia and drew with Frankston at McClelland Drive. 1 tip a draw.

Essendon Croatia is now Frankston's closest contender for the title and can keep the pressure on with a win against Green Gully at St Albans.

Gully coach Bill Vojtek has problems, but last week's shock win could boost Ajax. David Perkins has scored three goals in the past two games, and the fighting spirit is high at Gully. This may help Ajax, but Croatia will win. Makedonia has all but finished its hopes of winning the title. However, a result is needed against Slavia after Preston's three straight losses.

I'm tipping Slavia to win, only because Makedonia's spirit is at such a low ebb.

Oscar Crino is back in the running for a place with Juventus after missing last week's game because of commitments to the Victorian Schoolboys' team.

Juve should be able to beat George Cross at Olympic Park to strengthen its spot in the top four.

Albion faces a do-or-die clash with Sunshine, and will be without suspended Alex Wark. One consolation is that Steve Blair will return to team after missing last week.

Sunshine will be out to atone for last week's loss, and I think it's going to be curtains for Albion.

Croydon City faces a danger game against Albion City at Kim Reserve, and I think a draw will be the result here.

Cowan powers 'Cross

GEO. CROSS 2
ALTONA 2

Scorers: George Cross — Barron 24th, Paparas 88th. Altona — Gramsbergen 70th, Taylor 73rd.
Ground: Olympic Park.
Weather: Sunny and windy.
Crowd: Est. 400.
Referee: Jim Fakianos 5.
Cautions: Cowan (GC).

GEORGE CROSS: Matsson 7 — Coutjar 6, Hooper 7, Maitland 7, Barron 7. Castiello 6 injured (Wilson 6, 42nd min), Morgan 6, Mizil 6, — Thom 7, Cowan 9, Paparas 7.

ALTONA CITY: Van der Poel 7 — Lewis 6, Cannell 6 injured (Kelly 6, 50th min), Gramsbergen 6, Hird 6 — Waters 6, Whyte 7, Crow 7 — N Little 7.5, Innes 6, Train injured (Taylor 6, 5th min).

Although Altona City deserved to win this game, it was a poor performance for a team with final four aspirations.

Not until Rob Gramsbergen pulled a goal back in the 78th minute did Altona play with fire and real purpose.

Lack of penetration up front by Altona allowed George Cross to get over a bad start, in which it defended for long periods. With one of its first attacks, George Cross took the lead. If not for the solid defensive play of Derek Barron, Norm Maitland and Gary Hooper, the Cross may have been behind.

Tony Cowan, who had an excellent game, raced through after a long pass for George Cross, and crossed into the area. Tony Castiello collected the pass, beat two defenders and was fouled by Stuart Cannell, the Altona sweeper.

Full back Derek Barron had no trouble converting the resultant penalty kick.

Altona's task became even harder when George Cross sneaked another goal in the 88th minute. Again it was Cowan who started the move with a neat chip to Ray Mizil, who raced through with only goalkeeper Hans van der Poel to beat.

Van der Poel saved courageously at Mizil's feet, but Jim Paparas was on hand to shoot home the rebound.

Altona should never have been two goals down. If the players had showed the same drive early in the game as they did towards the end, City would have won by four goals.

Nat Little was Altona's best forward and he, along with Robin Crow and Billy White, was a key figure in Altona's comeback.

George Cross, which should be angry at itself for letting a two-goal lead slip, struggled in midfield throughout the match. Once Altona equalised the Cross rallied, and in the end the match could have gone either way.

An unfortunate aspect of the clash was the number of injuries. Hardly 10 minutes passed without a player floored and in need of treatment.

Tony Castiello had to go to hospital because of a gashed shin after a bad tackle from Peter Lewis. George Train was replaced after five minutes with a groin injury and Cannell had to leave the field with a calf injury.

But there were a few highlights. The fine forward play of Tony Cowan was a feature of this match, and he's one player George Cross needs to become a power once more.

The other major highlight was a brilliant move between Barron and Paparas in the first half. The pair played a succession of one-twos at high speed down the left side, and the effort deserved more than ending with Paparas' shot being blocked from 18 yards.

Altona's first great chance came when Little dummied Cannell's free kick and made space for Taylor, but he hesitated in the area and allowed Phil Coutjar to tackle.

Little hit a left foot half-volley just wide, and again Taylor wasted a chance when he shot weakly after a one-two with Robin Crow.

However, although Altona had much possession in the first half, it didn't exploit the wings enough, and wasn't decisive when it broke out of defence.

Altona started the second half with chances when Taylor's shot hit a defender's leg with Steve Matsson unattended, and Kevin Innes, who was brought into the side at centre forward, had a good shot saved by Matsson.

It wasn't until Gramsbergen made it 1-2 with strong header at the far post from a corner that game developed urgency.

Altona stormed forward, Nat Little's shot was too hot for Matsson, and Taylor tucked home the rebound from close range to make it 2-2.

Little moved into the area, and his low cross saw Taylor hit the post from five yards. Then George Waters, who ran well early in the game but faded, hit a far post cross for Crow, who brought an excellent save from Matsson.

George Cross could have taken the two points when Brian Thon, who had a good second half, crossed for Cowan to head just over the bar.

The frantic last minutes produced no more goals, and Altona was rewarded with a solitary point. Being three points behind Juventus and Croydon City, Altona has only slim hopes of reaching the State League Cup finals. — KYLE PATTERSON

MAKEDONIA 2 GG AJAX 3

Scorers: Makedonia - Faulkner 20th, Lendall 77th GG Ajax - Perkins (2) 43rd, 80th Vassallo 72nd.

Ground: B. T. Connor Reserve.

PRESTON MAKEDONIA: Clayton (Keeper) - Cullen, McMillan, Earle, Faulkner - Rainey, McMillan, Makedonia (Ward half time).

GREEN GUILTY AJAX: Denys - Hoggan, Donaldson, Kiar, O'Donnell - Bennie (Baller), Vassallo, Votek, Patton - Segl, Perkins.

Another $100,000 under the drain! This must be the thought of many Preston Makedonia supporters after the team's disastrous performance this season.

Knocked out of the Ampol Cup because the team was still being constructed, Preston has spent heavily this season but it did in 1978, but it was blown a golden opportunity of winning the State League championship.

Preston's players are the best paid in the State League, and the club has the biggest support, but they have not been successful.

Green Guilty Ajax came to B. T. Connor Reserve with a defensive strategy to earn a point, but after Preston's inabilities, managed to take two.

This result eases the relegation

SLAVIA 0 FRANKSTON 0

Ground: Showgrounds. Scorers: Slavia - Neri & Thompson, Westley, Lawson, Cullen - Ward, Houston, Train - Aldridge, Griffiths, Williams.

FRANKSTON CITY: Peterson - V. Bannon, Adams, T. Young, Tulloch - G. Bannon, Cooper (Goal-keeper), Westley, McChesney, Swinwick, Mitten, B. Young.

Frankston City coach Fredrickson will be disappointed from training this week in an attempt to rejuvenate the ailing league leader.

Frankston players met for an in-depth team talk last night (Tuesday) and will have a session at the Showgrounds this morning (Wednesday). There will be no practical training this week.

Bunce didn't hide his displeasure with his team's performance. "It was the worst game I've ever seen," said Bunce. "If it had been a boxing match, the referee would have thrown the fighters out of the ring and called a no-event."

Slavia coach Harry Katalin said his team should have won, and added: "Green Guilty gave us more trouble last week than Frankston did."

Frankston is in a serious slump. Sheer good fortune has seen the club stay at the top, but with four games remaining, Frankston is no certainty for the championship. Frankston, which hasn't won a game in five weeks, was lucky to escape with a point against Slavia. Three times striker Steve Aldridge had only Frank Peterson to beat, but missed the chances.

Slavia's defence, which had a good game in defence, looked the last over the bar for six metres. Frankston's defence was solid in the middle, and under pressure, Frankston was nullified and Noel Mitten was out of touch and lacking match fitness.

Young, at sweeper, was Frankston's best player. Westley was outstanding for Slavia, with Jim Williams and sweeper Steve Lawson also having good games. Overall, Slavia was the better side, with greater desire for the ball, and more penetration in attack.

Frankston included Alex Tulloch for Alan Parrott, who has not been heard of at Frankston since last week's game. Tulloch, a young rook didn't train, and failed to attend the match.

Brian Monaghan has been missing since the Green Guilty match, and the club is writing a letter to him to find the reason for the absence.

CROATIA 4 SUNSHINE 1

Scorers: Croatia - Gilder pen, 19th, Cumming 35th, Gardiner 50th, Cullen 80th, Sunshine - R. Nelson pen 50th.

Ground: Olympic Park. ESSENDON CROATIA: Blawie - Smit, Kokoska, Gardner, Short - Andrews, Murphy, Krajina (Pakele) - Cumming, Gilder, Cullen.

SUNSHINE: Clark - Dwyer, Lown, Ellis, Howe - Laing, R. Nelson, Musakov - Coyle (McRobert), Gilmour, D. Nelson.

Essendon Croatia is new Frankston City's main rival for the State League championship, but only after a flattering 4-1 win over Sunshine City.

Sunshine had enough of the game to deserve a draw, but was stunned by Croatia's first-half onslaught. However, Sunshine had just as many chances, and perhaps more of the play in the first half.

Croatia took the lead when Carl Gilder converted a penalty awarded against Sunshine's goalkeeper Tommy Cumming.

But Sunshine hit back, and in the middle stages of the opening 45 minutes, Sunshine's defence was goal. Keiron Carlyle missed two great chances during this time.

Croatia scored two goals in two minutes against the run of play to virtually end Sunshine's challenge. In the 56th minute, Gilder scored the ball home off the post through a rack of players to make it 2-0.

Soon after Cumming won a free kick, Kokoska, Gardner, Short and Andrews, Murphy, Krajina (Pakele) - Cumming, Gilder, Cullen.

Sunshine pulled a goal back soon after half time when Dave Nelson was fouled and his brother Rob took away the resultant penalty.

CRIPPLES AND ABLES

pressure on Bill Vojtek. However, the win was most unexpected. Gully was without John Cain, who damaged his knee ligaments at training last Friday in a collision with team mate David Perkins and will miss the rest of the season.

Most of the players to poorly the week before, included 17-year-old David Hoggan and Steve Bennie, who hadn't played for eight weeks.

Makedonia took the lead when Jeff Faulkner's shot deflected off Mick Kiarin past Lou Denys, who was the best player of the match.

A breakaway by Perkins after a pass from Andy Segl allowed Gully to equalise, and a headed goal by Gully sealed the victory for the visitors.

Green Guilty's great fighting spirit enabled the side to rally once more and score through Perkins to make the score 3-2. Every player contributed to Gully's win, but the team's defence was solid.

Gordon Flavell and Jeff Faulkner were Makedonia's best players.

Preston must now worry about retaining a spot in the top four!

Celtic ruins China

From JIM COOK
Our European Correspondent

The Chinese People's Republic team that played four matches in the U.K. recently against West Brom, Middlesbrough, Celtic and Chelsea, lost all of them, their heaviest defeat being 6-1 against Celtic. Celtic also turned out the biggest crowd, 18,000, while at West Brom they had 11,000, Middlesbrough 7000 and only slightly more against Chelsea. Celtic is expected to visit China next year.

Roy Clemence (31) who cost Liverpool a mere 18,000 pounds twelve years ago has kept 305 clean sheets in 632 appearances for Scunthorpe, Liverpool and England.

Tony Waddington who had so much success with Stoke City over the years, is now boss of small-time Crewe. He has signed Phil Bell, former Ipswich defender, and Welsh international keeper John Phillips.

Derek Johnstone, the Rangel Cup defender from central striker, is the target for a top English club who would have to fork out one million pounds if Rangers were to sell.

Millwall are not only broad-minded but big hearted. Despite being relegated from the Second Division they took the players, their wives, directors and barroom staff on a two-week holiday to Jamaica.

Sunderland have made a half million pound offer for Sheffield United's Argentine midfielder Alex Sabela. But Second Division Sunderland have competition from Leeds United, Manchester City and others.

West Ham, still interested in Stan Pearson of Manchester United, are also in contact with A267 Alkmaar of Holland regarding the West who won the European Golden Boot Award last season with 34 goals and whose club rates him at 500,000 pounds.

Charlie Keir, the 100,000 pound keeper for Ipswich, ex-Millwall and Sheffield United, who has been playing with Tampa Bay Rowdies in America.

West Bromwich Albion are likely to splash out 200,000 pounds to Hajduk split for keeper Ivan Katalin (27) and a Yugoslav international.

Dundee United paid Motherwell 100,000 pounds for 25-year-old striker Willie Pettigrew who scored over 100 goals for Dundee in the past.

John Toshack, also ex-Liverpool, now player-manager of Swansea.

West Ham who failed by a whisker to get back into the first division last season have introduced a new bonus scheme which could earn the players 10,000 pounds apiece on top of their wages... if they win promotion.

Olympic Marseilles have dropped their bidding for Derek White (30), the Glasgow Rangers striker who is transfer - listed.

Scorers: Loughane 2nd, Trott 50th. Ground: Cronon Park.

CRONON CITY: Edwards - Spink, Foster, McGinnis, Hoban - Murphy, Trott, Smith - Loughane, Brogan, Wylie (Housie).

HAKOAH: Trott, Kilda, O'Hara - McNell, Baker, Doane, Jordan - Topolanski (Carpetar half time), Lough, Gibson - Rooney, Gadeby, Lough.

The line goal by winger Peter Loughane in the second minute of play was a real surprise for a comfortable win against Hakoa.

Loughane hit a powerful shot from 20 metres past goalkeeper Mick O'Hara after making a great run down the centre of the field. Charlie Murphy's pass was to perfection. Cronon were at full pace when he struck the shot.

The move started when Cronon was awarded a free kick just inside the Hakoa half, and Jimmy Spink and Jim Wylie worked the ball to Murphy.

Cronon City, which faces a crucial game against Albion City in Kildare this Sunday, kept right on the heels of Juventus with the home win.

However, Cronon has to play three of its last four games away from home, and results have shown Cronon to be not as strong away from Cronon Park.

The 'crunch' game could well be the Cronon/Juventus game at Cronon Park scheduled for September 9.

ATTACKING A.E.K. SAVES FACE

By KYLE PATTERSON

A.E.K. Athens showed its true colours with a marvellous display of attacking soccer against Heidelberg Utd last Wednesday night at Olympic Park.

A.E.K. won 3-1, but had it not been for the erratic finishing of Christos Ardzizoglu, the score would have been much higher.

Ardzizoglu gave a breathtaking display of dribbling to tear the guts out of the Heidelberg defence.

He showed good understanding with the masterly Dusan Bajevic, and in the second half, these two showed the Heidelberg defenders the finer points of the one-two pass on several occasions.

Bajevic, too, has immaculate ball skills, but prefers to play an unhurried game, giving deft flicks on, and beating men with one smooth movement. The elegant striker never has to rush.

Ardzizoglu, with his fuzzy hair and socks rolled down to his ankles from the first minute, is a tearaway character. Collecting the ball in midfield, he sets off on frenzied runs at the defence, inviting a challenge.

The individual skills of these players marked A.E.K. in a class above Heidelberg, which struggled to find rhythm.

A.E.K. redeemed itself in the eyes of the many Greek fans who were disgusted with the Greek champion's display against Victoria, which ended in a four-goal drubbing for A.E.K.

The fans were gleefully happy not only with the win over Heidelberg, but the way the players won the match with pure skills.

Greek football is all about individuals. The players who can score goals and dribble opponents are the 'stars', while players who run and fight for ninety minutes, but lack explosive skills, are ignored.

This was shown up when A.E.K. took on Victoria. The A.E.K. players don't like a style of play in which hard running and fighting for the ball is essential.

The defensive qualities of A.E.K. are questionable. Although the defence was far better than it was against Victoria, Heidelberg was still able to carve out clear cut chances throughout the match.

In fact, with a little luck, Heidelberg could have levelled the score late in the game. However, this would have been an injustice.

Tarax, A.R. Split

clash in cup final

Tarax and A. R. Split will clash in the final of the Black Douglas Cup after recording impressive wins in the semi finals.

A. R. Split, the leader in the Industrial League Second Division, has marched relentlessly to the final against 1978 Black Douglas Cup winner, Tarax.

The final will be played at Middle Park on September 30. Tarax deserved to go into the final because they took their chances and Pegasus didn't. The margin of victory probably flattered Tarax but their overall strength was the deciding factor.

Tarax took the lead after nine minutes of play when a cross from the left by HADZIVIC caught the Pegasus defenders in two minds and the ball went through to the unmarked BICKICKI (7) who had the simplest task imaginable to slam the ball into the net from point blank range.

Stung by this reverse Pegasus surged into attack and goal-line clearances rather luckily kept the Tarax slate clean. D. MOYANO stretched the Pegasus defence several times with pinpoint cross field passes, but Pegasus constantly harried the Tarax rearguard with concerted attacks. A.KAZI was a tower of strength and cleared one ball off the line but even he was surprised when M. PLACKO took a great throw ball, raced to the by-line and pulled it back for S. FUS to shoot narrowly over, on the turn.

Tarax attacked again in the 27th minute and D. PANTIC slipped the ball across to T. BICKICKI for the spearhead to sidestep ROGER HARRIS and shoot hard and low for goal. Top spin on the ball caused it to fly off the groping arm of goalkeeper BOBETIC into the net.

Against the run of play Tarax advanced to 2-0.

Pegasus fought even harder. A great effort by their forwards ended with L. PAVLOVIC receiving the ball close in front of an unattended goal and shooting over when it seemed much easier to score.

In the 36th minute Pegasus pressure told. A combined attack culminated in M. OVCHAR crashing the ball into the roof of the net as he streaked across goal, to make the score 2-1.

The game heated up and a rather vicious tackle on A. TAYLOR by S. LUKIC, earned him the yellow card, as half-time approached Tarax regained their earlier composure with J. MILINOV a strong and constructive defender.

A number of Tarax attacks ended as D. PANTIC frequently wandered off half-time.

Half-time 2-1.

The second half was a very mediocre affair. As the players tired, so their constructive ideas lessened. Tarax scored in the 53rd minute when HADZIVIC fed T. BICKICKI. His shot was fended off by BOBETIC but PANTIC followed up to score.

In the 58th minute a good interchange approach by PANTIC and HADZIVIC ended with the latter giving Tarax a winning 4-1 margin.

BARRY DAVIS replaced the injured T. BICKICKI and later M. BICKICKI took over from M. KRESSINGER in the Tarax side. For Pegasus, J. KALOKIDIS replaced M. PLACKO and later switched places with goalkeeper BOBETIC.

Temperatures became a little frayed as weariness took over and the referee took out the yellow card for T. PLACKO of Pegasus after a clash with S. ZORAJA.

The last ten minutes were low key, only ROGER HARRIS, who had a roving commission in the Pegasus line up, continued to produce constructive input and the final whistle came with Tarax clear winners. — GEORGE YFILLAND

The second semi-final with the ball moving from end to end.

A.N.Z. looked particularly impressive and the speed of their attacks clearly worried A. R. Split whose defence was often outpaced.

After the initial burst A. R. Split settled down to play the more methodical soccer and mounted a series of attacks. It was no surprise when the two teams met in the final. A. R. Split was the favourite to win the cup.

LEAGUE GAME

Bosch Dynano head the ladder after their two-goal victory over a scoreless R.A.C.V. Standard of play was fairly even to the 40-minute mark when Bosch's ANGLIO VENEZIANO was awarded a disputed goal. This seemed to unsettle the R.A.C.V. side for the remainder of play. During the break R.A.C.V. reorganised field positions and changed tactics, placing more men in defence to contain Bosch's attack. Bosch scored only one more for the match when at the 80-minute mark RAYMOND KING put one away from a corner.

Heidelberg's defence did well under pressure in the first half, but in the second failed to mark opponents effectively.

However, Pat Bannon gave his all and Tansey and Zvendorn had respectable games.

The Heidelberg forward line struggled after the opening period because the team's mid-field was overshadowed. However, Campbell and Rooney were good players for Heidelberg.

Soon after, Bajevic punched through ball, but shot straight at a keeper Christidis, and not long after Intzoglou blocked Jim Campbell's shot on the line.

In defence, Pat Bannon and Jim Tansey were excellent early, but after the opening 15 minutes, A.E.K. was well on top.

Ardzizoglu missed his first easy chance when A.E.K. broke out four onto two and Mousouris squared the ball to Ardzizoglu. However, he shot wide with only Banovic to beat from 15 metres.

A.E.K.'s Vladic took command in the midfield after John Rooney and Campbell had played well early.

Arthur McMillan tripped Ardzizoglu for a definite penalty, but referee Evan Venios called 'play on'. That was the first of many awful decisions by the referee, who never had control of the match.

Zvendorn headed Bajevic's attempt off the line, then Ardzizoglu missed an open goal from point blank range.

A timely tackle by McMillan stopped Mimis Domazosos after great work by Bajevic, and then Ardzizoglu beat everyone, including goalkeeper Yakkha Banovic, but missed another open goal.

The second half started with Heidelberg coming back into the play momentarily. This period produced a goal when Bajevic passed to Cole, who was kept inside by Kalaitzidis, and the blonde striker scored to give Heidelberg the lead.

Minutes earlier, Cole had just missed Bannon's flick on from a corner who placed seven yards from goal.

However, A.E.K. got back into top gear, and destroyed Heidelberg.

Bannon was forced to bring down Ardzizoglu, and Venios awarded a penalty which Bajevic slotted home with consummate ease.

However, just before this incident the game took on an ugly appearance, McMillan and Kotsos jostled each other, and behind the play Cole and Intzoglou showed distinct dislike for each other.
